Don't Give a Hoot About Election

"Who, Whoo, Whooo's going to win Monday's election?" The Daily Colonist's tree-climbing photographer Jim Ryan asked these three wise owls after climbing 20 feet into a tree at the home of Mrs. Shirley Powell, 3529 Salsbury. But without permission from their mother, sitting 20 feet above in the same tree, the birds just wouldn't talk.—(Colonist photo by Jim Ryan.)

Diefenbaker Sums Up:

'Only Tories Can Beat Us'

(Compiled from BUP and CP Reports)

OTTAWA — Prime Minister St. Laurent admitted last night, for the first time in his election campaign, that the Conservatives are the only possible alternative to the Liberals with a hope of forming the next government.

He told a national TV audience that he agreed with Tory leader John Diefenbaker that neither the CCF nor the Social Credit parties have the slightest hope of winning more than a handful of seats.

Having obliquely admitted that the Conservatives have a chance to oust his own regime, Mr. St. Laurent then sought with figures to prove that they hadn't a chance of doing so.

The prime minister said to get a majority of one the Conservatives would have to retain the 53 seats they had in the last Parliament and win 80 more.

"Even the Conservatives themselves don't pretend that they can make any substantial gains in the western provinces or in Quebec. That leaves the Atlantic provinces and Ontario.

"Well, in the Atlantic provinces and Ontario combined, there are 118 seats, and in those provinces the Conservatives had 40 seats in the last Parliament. That leaves only 78, and they would have to win 80 to get a bare majority.

"To do that they would have to win every seat in Ontario and every seat in the Atlantic provinces and two more somewhere else," he said. "We all know that is quite impossible."

Mr. St. Laurent asked whether a Parliament in which no party had a majority would be a good thing for Canada.

"Do we want a Parliament, like the French Parliament, where bargains have to be made between various groups in order to form unstable majorities, and where governments change every few months?

"No one wants a one-party state here in Canada, but it does seem to me hard to escape the conclusion that, in this election, as in the last two elections, there is only one party which has sufficient support in every province to assure this country a stable government and that party is the Liberal party."

'Put Country Above Party'

(From CP and BUP)

OTTAWA — Progressive Conservative leader John Diefenbaker yesterday summed up next Monday's election as "the people of Canada against a ruling caste."

He said the Liberal government, after 22 years in power, has developed a power complex and believes itself infallible.

Making his final nationwide TV appeal, Mr. Diefenbaker warned that if the government is not changed, "the situation will be very serious in this country."

"If the government goes back next Monday," he said, "don't ask the opposition to stand up for your rights, because there will be no rights left."

He stressed that the government could be changed only if the voters united behind the Conservatives as the only party with an opportunity to replace the Liberals.

Urging "my fellow Canadians" to consider the challenge and "put your country above political party," the Tory leader said that this "has always been done wherever freedom exists and is maintained."

CITES INCIDENTS

To point up what he meant by the threat to freedom, Mr. Diefenbaker listed the following incidents:

In last year's pipeline debate, the Liberals had trampled on free men's rights and "tore up the constitution." The government had repeatedly denied information and had given wrong or misleading information on the Herbert Norman case and on the shipment of war supplies to Egypt.

The government had brought in discriminatory credit restrictions against the wishes of the people. Last year it had overtaxed the average Canadian family by $120. It had made an "insufficient, inequitable, niggardly" increase of $6 in the $40 monthly old age pension.

"Without regard to party," Mr. Diefenbaker said, "I find that there is across this country a tremendous groundswell of opposition, of determination, of protest on the part of the average Canadian man and woman against the power-mad men who have been in power in Ottawa far too long."

Sixty Cats Evicted

Sixty cats have been removed in recent weeks from a residence on Pine Street in Victoria West, "and I think that just about clears up the situation," Parks administrator W. H. Warren said yesterday.

Mr. Warren said the cats had been removed with the owner's co-operation, secured after neighbors had complained.

Arsenal 'All But Useless'

Two Dockyard Jetties Condemned—Pearkes

Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, VC, struck close to home last night in his attacks on waste and extravagance in the national defence department's military expenditures.

Speaking to a ball-jamming crowd of 70 at Cadboro Bay, the Esquimalt - Saanich Conservative candidate levelled his guns on the Rocky Point naval arsenal "jetty that doesn't jet" and the fact that two out of three jetties at HMC Dockyard are condemned.

The Rocky Point naval arsenal was built at a cost of $5,000,000, but is all but useless because of the location of a jetty at which no naval craft can dock to load, he said.

RUSTING AWAY

The jetty itself cost more than $200,000 and is supported on concrete pilings set in enormous iron tubs filled with rock and gravel.

"Already the iron is starting to rust away and in time the gravel will spill over the floor of the ocean," he said.

The Conservative defence department critic in Commons also charged that jetty "A" at Dockyard was the "only jetty in working order in the only naval harbor on the Pacific Coast."

Jetties "B" and "C" are condemned, the general said, and "cannot be used for the purposes for which they were designed."

NOT LOOSE TALK

Gen. Pearkes countered Defence Minister Campney's suggestion that the general was indulging in "loose talk" about waste.

"As critic of the defence department, I have often offered constructive criticism," he answered. "Sometimes they would listen and sometimes it seemed that after a few years some of the policies I introduced into the House were adopted.

"But I have also seen millions upon millions of dollars of the taxpayers money wasted in incompleted or misguided projects. Is it loose talk if waste and extravagance is found or should it be kept quiet? Surely it is my duty to . . . criticize."

DOWN THE DRAIN

Gen. Pearkes turned his attention to the "Velvet Glove" missile project, which he said amounted to $24,000,000 "down the drain."

The project to develop Canada's own missile was suddenly abandoned when the United States told the government that "we want to sell you our missiles," he said.

Canada lost everything but experience on the Velvet Glove—"the weapon that never was"—but the experience gained by a "small number of technicians and scientists is also down the drain," he said. "Most of them went back to the U.K., to the U.S. or are dispersed throughout industry.

The general blasted away at the CF-100, the fighter with which the defence department "lulled the people into a false sense of security."

The plane had "outstanding possibilities" but because of production delays and rapid advances in aircraft design it had become obsolete as soon as it was airborne.

"It is ridiculous for Mr. Campney to say that the CF-100 can outfly any Russian bomber," he said. "Propeller-driven bombers, yes; it could not touch Rusian jet bombers. The plane cannot fly high enough or fast enough.

"I am not exaggerating when I state that the government has spent $20,000,000 on surplus aircraft that are obsolescent."

Lowers Value

Ghost Cuts Taxes By Haunting Home

PETERSFIELD, England (AP) —A ghost in a first-floor bedroom earned Lt.-Col. Algernon Bonham-Carter a 10 per cent cut in his tax rates.

The local valuation court has agreed to reduce the taxes on the colonel's 500-year-old house because the ghost was knocking down property's value.

A real estate agent who testified for the colonel said the ghost kept showing up in one of the four main bedrooms. Just who's ghost it is was not known.

B.C. Unionist Charges

Immigrant Flow 'Anti-Labor Plan

Big business was charged last night with attempting to break down labor conditions in British Columbia by bringing into the province large numbers of immigrants.

"It is high time the labor movement demanded of the Canadian government a better immigration policy," Victor Midgley, first vice-president of the B.C. Federation of Labor, stated at a meeting of Victoria Labor Council.

The immigrant problem is worse, he said, than when the Canadian Pacific Railway brought Orientals into Canada.

The new immigrants, rather than taking just railway laboring jobs, are going into highly-skilled jobs, taking them away from Canadians, he said.

There are 26,000 registered unemployed in Vancouver, he said.

DISPUTE SETTLED

Mr. Midgley reported the settlement of a dispute which threatened to shut down sections of the $170,000,000 Westcoast Transmission pipeline and a $25,000,000 gas-scrubbing plant at Taylor near Fort St. John, B.C.

Non-union carpenters, he said have been brought into the union; substandard wages raised to union scale; hours of work reduced from as much as 16 hours a day to eight.

Immigrants on the project fought for longer hours, after the short work week had been "handed to them on a platter," he said.

SHOULD BE TAUGHT

Mr. Midgley said immigrants should be taught that labor here has an eight-hour day and does not take two jobs.

He also charged that the provincial government "is not prepared to enforce the laws which establish our work conditions."

After trade union leaders had complained that men were working long hours overtime on these projects without a government permit, it took five weeks for a government inspector to arrive at Fort St. John to remedy the situation, he said.

One-Way Trial

Alderman in Spin Over Roundabout

Public works committee will recommend to city council today that the "one-way" plan for replacement of Fountain Circle be instituted on a trial basis.

It reached this decision yesterday without the concurrence of Ald. J. Donald Smith, after receiving the unanimous report of the traffic advisory committee opposing the two-way plan prepared by consulting traffic engineer D. Jackson Fausitman as an alternative to the one-way plan.

Ald. Smith, previously a strong proponent of trying the one-way plan, wanted the committee to recommend that council shelve all plans for replacement of the roundabout and send letters to the taxpayers saying, "We're so sorry we spent your money. We're right back where we started."

He contended that council "won't go for the one-way plan. All we are doing is continuing the debate for another few months. All we are doing is frustrating the people."

Ald. M. H. Mooney, committee chairman, felt however, that council would approve the one-way plan. "They have had time to think," he added.

The plan originally called for one-way traffic southbound on Government as far south as Herald and northbound on Douglas over the same distance.

Bennett Draws 1,000 in Winnipeg

WINNIPEG (BUP) — British Columbia Premier W. A. C. Bennett last night told the largest Manitoba Social Credit rally of the current campaign that the Liberal government's "tight money" policy was running the country.

Speaking to a near-capacity crowd of more than 1,000 at Winnipeg's Playhouse Theatre, Mr. Bennett said lack of purchasing power in the hands of the Canadian people was the cause of the present "inflation" and that tight money was the "wrong medicine."

A scattering of hecklers throughout his speech failed to hinder the premier as he hammered out the Socred policy of fighting inflation by lowering the income tax exemptions.

He said the present inflation was caused by the heavy load of taxation which robbed the worker of purchasing power.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

MANY of Victoria's Chinese residents collect their mail from a sort of outdoor post office, which is simply a ledge in the wall at the corner of Fisgard and Government Streets.

The ledge is right next to the bulletin board where notices and copies of Chinese newspapers (Victoria's New Republic and the Chinese Times of Vancouver) are posted each day.

Letters are placed on the ledge and held down with a weight to stop them blowing away.

At about 1.30 a.m. yesterday, the attention of a passer-by was arrested by a stack of post cards on the ledge.

He examined the post cards and found that they were "Vote for Skillings" cards, addressed to individual Chinese-Canadian voters.

The Victoria Social Credit candidate was apparently trying to make amends for a recent faux pas—his unfortunate remark that another candidate didn't have "a Chinaman's chance" of being elected.

* * *

It seemed to the passer-by that the residents of Chinatown were showing their contempt for Mr. Skillings by ignoring his election propaganda.

Later, however, the observer told me about the situation, and I went along with him to Chinatown's outdoor post office. The Skillings pamphlets were gone. It is unlikely that all the recipients picked them up.

Were they quietly withdrawn by Socred agents?

The postcards were printed in English. At least one other party is sending out campaign literature in Chinese.

Along the leisurely streets of Chinatown, where you can still buy dried lizards, candied chickens and eggs as old as campaign promises, the election doesn't seem to be raising much dust.

Eisenhower Says:

Initiative Up to Reds

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower said Wednesday he would like to see a total ban on atomic weapons tests—but only if the Soviet Union agrees to a cheat-proof nuclear disarmament system.

In one of the most news-making press conferences of his career, Eisenhower made one chief point: What happens next in world affairs is mostly up to the Russians.

Eisenhower said that the United States must and will continue to test nuclear weapons, partly to reduce their deadly radioactive fall-out.

He voiced doubt, however, that the United States will ever test another super H-bomb like the one exploded in the South Pacific in 1954.

TV INTERVIEW

On other points, Eisenhower said:

1. "Somebody in this government" but not himself would be glad to answer Soviet Communist Secretary Nikita S. Khrushchev's television interview last Sunday—if the Russians would broadcast the reply without jamming or otherwise interfering with it.

2. Khrushchev's offer to pull Soviet troops out of Europe if the United States did so was old stuff and an attempt to split the West-ern allies. Eisenhower said the U.S. would take no such step without consultation with its friends.

Eisenhower's comments on the H-bomb related matters came in the wake of conflicting testimony by scientists before a U.S. Senate-House of Representatives subcommittee investigating the effects of atomic fall-out on this and future generations.

Some have said the tests endanger the health of thousands if not millions in years ahead. But Atomic Energy Commissioner Willard F. Libby gave the opinion Wednesday that the danger is small compared with "the risk of annihilation" if the U.S. abandoned nuclear weapon development.

Eisenhower took much the same line.

He said he has no choice but to accept the "authoritative" opinion of the National Academy of Sciences, which reported last October there is no great hazard to health from atomic weapon testing.

He went on to say that the U.S. has tried to ban bomb tests as part of "a general system of disarmament, controlled and in-

Bulganin Ready to Sign Treaty on Disarmament

GENEVA (AP)—Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin announced Wednesday the U.S.S.R. "is ready to conclude an appropriate agreement on the whole problem of disarmament as well as on its particular aspects, including an agreement on immediate cessation of nuclear weapons tests."

The announcement was made in the form of a precedent-shattering personal message to the opening session here of the International Labor Organization.

Back Workers' Man Ship Workers Told

It's common sense to elect a member of parliament who was concerned with the interests of the workers, Victoria CCF candidate Victor Williams told a large group of workers during a noontime meeting at VMD No. 2 yard yesterday.

"You would not think of electing the president of the company for whom you work as the president of your union" said Mr. Williams. "Do not elect a government which is committed to protect the interests of the companies for whom you work. Surely it's common sense to elect one who is concerned with the interests of the workers."

He quoted from Hansard, referring to a statement by national Social Credit leader Solon Low, who said: "Any government which advocates social security and full employment would lead to ruin and slavery of the people."

"This statement does not now agree with the false election promises especially prepared by the Social Credit party for gullible voters," stated Mr. Williams.

Two opposing candidates in Esquimalt-Saanich riding last night told audiences they were optimistic of election in Monday's polls.

Alistair Fraser, Liberal candidate in Esquimalt-Saanich told an audience of 40 last night his election was "probable."

Speaking at Langford Community Hall, Mr. Fraser said: "Every report we get indicates that it now looks probable this Monday will see the return of the Liberal candidate as Member of Parliament for Esquimalt-Saanich."

* * *

Noel Bell, Social Credit candidate, speaking at Cobble Hill before a similar meeting, said he thought his chances of election were good because he represented "the only party with a dynamic policy for the future of Canada."

He claimed the three opposition parties in the riding were relying on the personalities of their leaders.

"People who have followed a personality in the past have usually found themselves in trouble," he added.

* * *

Policies were also mentioned at Mt. Tolmie CCF Hall by Dr. J. M. Thomas, CCF candidate in Esquimalt-Saanich. He pointed out that votes should be cast for policies.

"It is better to vote for what you want and not get it than to vote for what you don't want, and get it," Dr. Thomas told his audience of 30.

He said what the voters of the riding did not want were the present old-age pensions and the "Trans-Canada pipeline scandal."

* * *

Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, VC, Conservative candidate for re-election in Esquimalt-Saanich, left last night for Prince Albert, Sask., John Diefenbaker's home constituency, to speak in support of his national leader.

He will make a stopover of several hours at Edmonton on the return trip.

At 8 p.m. tomorrow he will wind up his campaign here when he addresses a joint meeting with A. deH. McPhillips, Victoria candidate, in St. Luke's Hall, Cedar Hill Cross Road.

Where to Vote? Check Your List

Wondering where you go to vote on Monday?

Local returning officers report they are receiving hundreds of calls from voters wanting to know where the individual polling stations will be. And, they say, it's a monumental problem to search the records to answer the individual voters.

Unlike the provincial election, no "where to vote" cards will be mailed out, except some by the various political parties.

Voters are asked to check the list of voters sent to all homes last month and see where they go to vote and which poll they are in. The information is all there.

Union Refuses Offer

Lumbermen Ask Strike Vote Check

VANCOUVER (CP) — Coast lumber operators demanded Wednesday that the B.C. government supervise a strike vote amongst the 30,000 woodworkers pressing wage demands.

At the same time, the operators said they would accept a conciliation board majority recommendation that wage talks be put off for four months in hopes that the economic situation of the lumber industry will improve.

Officials of the International Woodworkers of America had refused the conciliation board recommendation.

Union officials have already announced a union-supervised strike vote to be finished June 14.

They have asked workers to vote against the conciliation board recommendation. President Lloyd Whalen of the Vancouver local of the IWA said any strike vote, government-supervised or not, must be finished by June 25, before workers begin to go on holidays.

The workers are asking a 20-per-cent wage increase. Basic rate in the present contract, which expires June 14, is $1.59 an hour.

The IWA policy committee claimed the operators' stand shows "they would rather fight than settle."

Special bulletins are being sent to IWA members telling them they are "confronted with a large scale and elaborate plot to manoeuvre them into acceptance of an indefinite extension of the present agreement."

Reds Seek Lower Birth Rate

China Legalizes Abortions

HONG KONG (AP)—Communist China has legalized abortion and sterilization and ordered a sweeping campaign to introduce contraception among its 600,000,000 citizens.

The New China News Agency reported the about-face in policy Wednesday. It said the order was issued by the health ministry three weeks ago as a health measure.

Three years ago the Peiping People's Daily virtually outlawed birth control, calling it "a means of killing people without shedding blood."

The Peiping regime put China's population at 583,000,000 in 1953, and said it was growing at the rate of about 15,000,000 yearly.

Marxist theory holds that the Red social system can easily provide food and jobs for any number of persons.

The Red mainland, however, currently is suffering from a severe food shortage after last year's natural disasters.

The order said: "The application of contraceptive methods is a positive means to planned birth control and is a means acceptable to the people."

It added that couples desirous of sterilization operations "may approach a doctor for it and, barring complications, the operations may be granted."

The only conditions on abortions, it added, are that the doctor must be convinced the woman can undergo the operation without harm and that she has not had a previous abortion within a year.

The Closure

WHILE admitting that it attacked the pipeline debate closure at the time as unwise, the afternoon paper argues ingenuously in an attempt to becloud the issue by inversion. It claims that actually the closure provided 16 days of full debate, ample time for discussion had the Conservative party wished to discuss it. The latter however "did not intend to discuss it. Instead it carried through a filibuster to damage the government."

This is strangely at variance with the view taken editorially by the Victoria Daily Times during the debate. On May 18 of last year, under the heading "Why the Gag?" it said: "The Government is the prisoner of its own timetable. If it cannot close the debate by June 1, the pipeline cannot reach Winnipeg this year. Why should it? No one in Parliament has yet answered this question."

A week later, under the caption "Why the Guillotine?" it said: "Mr. Drew has a perfect right to attack the use of closure and the Liberal party every reason for humiliation in using it." On June 6 it said: "It (the St. Laurent government) has invoked closure time and again and limited the debates of Parliament, contrary to all Liberal principles."

Of the pipeline measure itself the Times said on January 19 of this year: "The whole scheme is deplorable in its present form but Mr. Howe is ramming it through a Parliament which obviously does not understand it."

These extracts of necessity are out of context but they nevertheless speak for themselves and deny utterly the dissembling in which that newspaper now indulges. What a difference an election makes!

What are the facts? There were not 16 days of full debate; there were 16 days of wrangling over points of order, with the Conservative and CCF opposition groups fighting desperately to maintain their rights of discussion. Far from staging a filibuster the Conservatives were denied the chance even to speak properly on the pipeline measure.

The first of the four actual closure motions was invoked before debate had even begun. The third was used to carry clauses 1, 2, 3, 5, 6 and 7, the heart of the bill, without a single word of debate. On the antecedent resolution notice of closure was given when no one but Mr. Howe had uttered more than a few syllables on the measure. On the first three clauses the chairman ruled that Mr. Howe's 207 words of "explanation" constituted "consideration" by the House, and those 207 words were all the "consideration" they got.

There were other breaches of procedure and they are all on the parliamentary record. No amount of specious election argument can rub them out. They make clear beyond the slightest doubt that the closures applied by the Liberal government were designed not to end debate but to prevent it. And that is precisely what happened. Parliament was hamstrung by ruthless methods, and it will continue to be until the Liberals are turned out of office.

The Record Is Against Him

DEFENCE MINISTER CAMPNEY seems to be smarting under a sense of outrage because Major-General Pearkes has accused his department of being wasteful. According to the minister it is unfair to the people to criticize the way the Liberal government spends the billions voted for defence. Why? In what respect is it unfair to the people for a member of Parliament in possession of facts to draw their attention to loose or unwise use of their own money? It would be not only unfair but highly improper for him not to do so.

In some prairie town where the public is not in contact with the armed forces or military installations Mr. Campney might have got away with that line of defence. It was foolish of him to try it here, where the taxpayers can see at least part of what is going on and make their own judgment as to whether the department is wasteful or not. One need look no farther than the southern end of Vancouver Island for evidence of poor judgment resulting in public funds being thrown away.

To quote just one example, there is the Rocky Point fiasco. At a cost of many millions of dollars the government built a new naval arsenal at Rocky Point to which the only access for the purpose of ammunitioning and de-ammunitioning ships is by way of an exposed jetty. Because of the Defence Department's inability or refusal to recognize the impracticabilities of the site chosen for this jetty the government has put the navy's coast defence fleet in the incredible position of being unable to replenish vital ammunition supplies on a windy day.

The jetty is so located that not even the smallest fighting ships can berth at it. They must lie offshore to receive supplies from lighters through a process which entails double handling and more than doubles the time required to fill or empty the ships' magazines. What is far worse, however, is the fact that the jetty is so open to the weather that a moderate breeze raises a sea which makes it unapproachable even by the lighters. Thus a ship which might have fired her last round would have to wait unarmed and defenceless until the weather moderated, perhaps days hence.

The department must have known of this weakness before it began pouring millions into the arsenal project, but went ahead and built the jetty there anyhow. Under pressure from General Pearkes in Parliament the government had to admit all these shortcomings; had to admit that under certain conditions the jetty is useless; had to admit that no way had yet been found to render the jetty fully serviceable. In the face of this, how can Mr. Campney now assert there is no wastefulness in his department or accuse General Pearkes of unfairness for mentioning the subject?

Victoria-Port Angeles Route

EVERY steamship link between Vancouver Island and the Mainland that Victoria can secure will be of service in the future. Naturally, the Victoria-Vancouver link remains of chief concern, involving the two largest communities of the province, while the absence of fast direct connection by water between the two cities has hurt. For other reasons, the Victoria-Port Angeles ferry route is of prime importance for itself. Two highways in the Pacific Coast states lead naturally to Port Angeles as the starting point for intended Canadian tours. In the last few years Victoria has learned the importance of Port Angeles as a bridgehead during the tourist season.

Word that Black Ball Transportation Inc. will put a new and much larger passenger-car ferry on the route next year, for triple sailings on this link connected with way points, will be received with every satisfaction here. A 16-knot ferry capable of loading 1,000 passengers and 125 cars at each sailing should work an enormous improvement in the situation. In plain terms it means that hundreds of visiting car parties will start their Canadian tours at Victoria, who otherwise might have been discouraged by an overloaded system. In return, no doubt, Victorians will use the Port Angeles link just as freely on their visits south of the border. This is only one step ahead in the ferry problem, but it is a good one.

Interpreting the News

Formosa Incidents Rankle

By GEORGE KITCHEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (CP) — Anti-American demonstrations in Formosa, Japan and Korea may force a re-assessment of United States Far Eastern policy.

In particular, it may result in a congressional investigation into the American relationship with General Chiang Kai-shek and the Nationalist Chinese regime he heads on Formosa, the island fortress off the China mainland.

Official Washington was particularly shocked and disturbed by the anti-American rioting on Formosa, where the American embassy was sacked, the American flag destroyed and 11 Americans beaten by Nationalist Chinese angered over the acquittal of a U.S. soldier accused of slaying a native peeping-tom.

The United States has been the financial and moral mainstay of Chiang and his free Chinese forces since they fled the mainland in 1949. In that eight-year period, the U.S. government has poured more than $2,000,000,000 in military and economic aid into the defence of Formosa and its neighboring islands.

Several congressmen already have declared they intend to seek an official inquiry into the Formosan incident and the state department is searching for the reasons for the anti-American feeling there and in other Asian areas.

Suggestion have been made here that there may be "too many Americans" on the Nationalist island. Others blame Communist agitators. Still others hold the theory that the outbreak may have been an expression of Nationalist anger over American reluctance to allow Chiang to launch an attack on the mainland.

A possible explanation came from Carlos P. Romulo, Philippine ambassador who is highly regarded in U.S. government circles. He suggested the primary cause was American failure to respect the national sovereignty of newly-founded Far Eastern states.

The core of the resentment spreading wherever the United States has military bases in the Far East," he said, is at reluctance of U.S. authorities to allow American servicemen to be tried before local courts for crimes committed in the country where they are stationed.

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

A HORSE ran away on a country road in Quebec the other day and threw a man out of the cart.

That was a rarity, so it was news.

Horses are something to read about only occasionally, unless by betting men and during riding exhibitions, see very seldom, and give small heed to.

It is conceivable, in fact, that a person could grow to maturity nowadays and never set eyes on one. Yet 50 years ago and less Old Dobbin was a familiar sight.

It was a poet, naturally, who said: "God forbid that I should go to any heaven in which there are no horses." But he was also a Spanish hidalgo who agreed that the best thing for the inside of a man was the outside of a horse.

A colleague along the hall thinks so too, but he is in the great minority. For most of us a horse means a metal thing with horsepower.

Our heaven will be paved with carburetors.

* * *

Funny, in a way, that the horse should be with man so long and then get summary dismissal. In some places the horse is still extant but as a utilitarian object—the only criterion in our madding world—he is demode.

Yet he was man's close companion. Right from the beginning, it seems, or as near that as does not matter. He is in the Bible, you know, a war steed. This was his role for a long time, in Homeric times and, as well you know, in the film about Henry V.

Shakespeare liked him, although if he were rewriting "Richard III" now he'd have to have Richard cry: "A tank! a tank! my kingdom for a tank!"

And that doesn't sound very poetic, does it?

It was Shakespeare who sounded the pet name for a horse prevalent in his time; when in "The Merchant of Venice" he wrote: "Thou hast got more hairs on thy chin, than Dobbin my fillhorse has on his taile."

Dobbin was a variation of Robert, through Robin and Rob, so widely used it became a nickname for all horses.

* * *

It came to mean mainly the workhorse, however, the Dobbin my readers with long memories—and they needn't be too long—will recall. Dobbin it was who pulled the loads, light and heavy, and didn't have to worry about traffic roundabouts like the Fountain.

And what a fine, big creature he was, especially on show days—at a fair or something. Then his tail was caressed, his coat shined, he was beribboned and all decked up and he looked like the king he was—big, strong and beautiful.

Especially if he were a drayhorse—what specimens these Dobbins were!

And how well he served his masters until, satiated with sophistication, the latter dumped him out to pasture. Not like Nashua now enjoying the rewards of a million-dollar career, but to near oblivion.

Ah well, what must be must be. But Dobbin deserves our respectful memory, even if one of the last of his line runs away on a Quebec road and throws his driver.

That was a rarity, so it was news. The converse is so frequent it is also news, because horsepower without the horse can be malignant in a way Old Dobbin could never begin to equal.

Reports from Ottawa

IF Prime Minister St. Laurent's truly impressive efforts on the hustings pull the Liberal bandwagon past June 10 without losing too many spokes out of its wheels, a fair share of the credit should go to the PM's relatively unknown chief of staff.

"Chief of staff" is a more apt description of Dan Wallace's role than the title of executive officer they hung on him when they enticed him to quit the Defence Department last year to help the PM win the election.

It's also fair comment, I think, to draw an analogy between his function vis-a-vis St. Laurent and the role Jack Pickersgill played in relation to Mackenzie King. Pickersgill was a researcher, speech writer and political adviser par excellence who became the power behind the throne, so to speak, in the latter days of the old regime and the early days of the St. Laurent regime, until he himself moved up among the gods in the cabinet.

Wallace describes himself as a researcher. He's too politic to admit being a speech writer. But it is obvious to anyone travelling on the prime ministerial train that Wallace's typewriter is extraordinarily busy. Few would infer that this one-time English professor (at St. Francis Xavier University) is writing odes on the beauties of the passing countryside.

* * *

Wallace, now 47, has fluttered around the periphery of politics for the last decade like a moth around a light bulb. A pre-war Rhodes scholar with one of the brightest minds in Ottawa, Wallace went from Oxford to teaching; from the army to wartime information work, and from the National Film Board to try his hand at being a politician. That was when he returned to his native Halifax to seek the Liberal nomination in the 1949 election. He lost to John Dickey.

Then followed six years as Health Minister Martin's executive assistant and Man Friday. His job was to second guess Martin on everything. He had to produce ideas on health, welfare and furthering Martin's ambition to become prime minister. He dug facts, wrote speeches, and reorganized the department's big public relations and information branch.

Then Wallace tried being an ordinary, garden variety, non-political civil servant, as chief secretary to the Defence Department. But after 18 months the PM beckoned and Wallace shifted to an office in the East Block.

* * *

Wallace denies that he said—as one reporter quoted him as saying—that in the light of the Maritimes' ancient and deep-rooted antipathy towards Ontario, "We'll stir them up a bit" with charges of a Diefenbaker-Frost deal. That would, of course, have been entirely out of character with the Liberals' professed aim of encouraging national unity.

But whether the PM stirs this particular pot or others, the man who is at his side lending muscle to the ladle is big, burly Dan Wallace, one-time amateur middleweight champ of the Maritimes—all around, a handy man for the PM to have in his corner in any hot political meeting.

Wallace loves it, but he has one beef. The PM has a photographic memory. Wallace will show him a speech to be delivered that evening—and for the rest of the day, at almost every whistle stop, St. Laurent will come out with the juciest parts of his still to be delivered speech.

Disconcerting for a conscientious speech wri— I mean, research man.

Fat Man's Laugh

By GREGORY CLARK

AMONG my acquaintances is a very fat man, who 10 years ago developed that fat wheezy laugh which goes with too much adipose tissue. It is the comfortable, chuckling, wheezy sort of laugh commonly referred to as a whisky laugh; though my friend does not drink.

He is just an eater. For years his doctor has been warning him to take off weight. His wife and family, his friends, have all pleaded with him, needled him, pestered him, to no avail. He is one of those fat men who rejoice in their lard. Wheezily, he scoffed at all admonitions.

A couple of days ago, after not seeing him for a year, I met him on the street and scarcely recognized him. He must have lost 50 pounds. He had that baggy look fat men have who reduce. His pants sagged. His coat hung.

Naturally, I expressed my astonishment.

"I suddenly decided," he confided, "to take off weight."

"How?"

"By not eating," he said. "The doctors assure me there is only one way to take off weight. Don't eat."

"What made you decide, at last?" I asked, remembering all the years of needling and pleading.

"It all happened," he said, "in a minute. We have a tape recorder in our office, and a bunch of us took it with us on a convention, to record a couple of speeches. For fun, we also did a little recording up in our hotel room where the usual convention shenanigans were going on. We played it back, and I heard myself laugh."

"Oho!" said I.

"I could scarcely believe my ears," said my sadly reduced friend. "Was that wheezy old guy me? I made them play it back a couple of times. I never heard a more disgusting sound in my life: a wheezy, fat, chuckley sort of guzzle of a sound. Right then and there, I decided to reduce. Next noon, I interviewed my doctor. He gave me the prescription: the minimum of food. No more gorging. No more smacking of lips. Look at me!"

Fifty pounds off, easy.

"Now hear me laugh," he cried.

And there was no fat man wheeze.

On the Record

Broken Illusion

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

THE Beck case has not been particularly astonishing. It merely illustrates the old axiom attributed to Lord Acton that "all power corrupts and absolute power corrupts absolutely."

Since 1933 America—along with most of the rest of the Western world—has seen a radical evolution of public attitudes. In the early "thirties, following the shock of the depression, employers came under uninterrupted attack as misusers of economic power. Investigation followed investigation, leading to new legislation and the creation of new agencies to restrain or control the powers of the "malefactors of great wealth," who were held responsible for most, if not all, of the evils of this world, including war.

* * *

Out of the picture of evil thus created (which quite transcended errors and fallibilities common to all men), numerous necessary and lasting reforms were created along with others that proved to be unconstitutional, transitory, or dangerous.

During this period "labor" was invested with a halo. As the employer class could do no right, "labor" could do no wrong.

The power of legislation and the influence of the state apparatus were not only put behind labor's right to organize but behind compulsion to do so, and all attempts to restrain that right by clothing it with responsibilities toward the public and the workers themselves were denounced as "reactionary" which had become a synonym for "wicked." One need only recall the vehemence of the opposition to "Taft-Hartley," not only from "labor" but from the whole liberal wing of American public opinion that was then dominant.

I have put "labor" in quotes, to differentiate it from the workers themselves who actually, then or now, have no effective control over the leadership that speaks and acts in their name.

Thus protected by law and public opinion, the power of labor bosses—economic, financial, and political—grew with prodigious rapidity. The policy-makers of powerful unions control a captive membership. They exercise a monopoly over their jobs. A man cannot work without a union card; his dues are usually collected automatically out of his pay envelope; some unions require very high initiation fees; the worker cannot resign.

The unions exercising such a monopoly greatly extended their economic functions and activities, establishing pension schemes and banking operations. With enormous funds at their disposal they built impressive headquarters, invested in low-cost housing, and, in other ways, became capitalistic enterprises, maintaining powerful lobbies, employing expensive attorneys and public-relations counsellors, exercising heavy pressures on all branches of government and public opinion, and paying their leaders—bosses, or "tsars"—enviable salaries and expense accounts.

* * *

Of course so much unchecked power is corruptive. The labor leader (in a $20 shirt, a $10 tie, riding in a Cadillac, and staying in a $50-a-day hotel suite) lost his halo as the representative of the "horny-handed son of toil."

The labor racket hearings in Washington are the inevitable result, and they are hurting. The AFL-CIO is expelling Dave Beck has not overcome the blow. Workers themselves are revolting, charging unfair practices in their own unions. Organizing campaigns are slowing down. The movement against the closed shop is growing.

The leading union bureaucracies, thoroughly alarmed, are determined to clean house. But it will be more than a spring or fall going over. And once an illusion is broken, it is never fully restored.

Fun, Fact and Fiction

Medical science, as represented by a distinguished Philadelphia physician, threatens to make us all live to be 150. With retirement at 65, this means a lot more gardening, stamp-collecting, letter-writing to the papers and grandchild-sitting than most people would care to contemplate.

* * *

As Ike says, we need a strong information program to tell foreigners just what we are trying to do. Then, maybe, they can explain it to us.

—Senator Reaper in Detroit News

* * *

An old farmer cut off one of his toes while cutting wood. He went to the doctor's office to have it dressed, and as the doctor looked at it he asked:

"Sam, did you cut it off clean that way with one blow?"

"Well, now, doctor," replied Sam, "do you think I'd take a second lick at it?"

Letters to the Editor

Debate Stifled

Dr. Fairey's recent advertisement shows that he fully supports, without reservation, the complete stifling of all discussion and debate at Ottawa on the pipeline bill.

Hansard shows that Mr. Howe prevented all debate as each section of the bill came before the House and he rammed through a separate motion of prevention on each section.

Howe later admitted that he had misinformed the House in the matter of the pipeline directors being permitted to clean up millions on pipeline stock manipulation, even though this was made possible by the millions of dollars loaned by the Liberal government to the same pipeline company.

Would Dr. Fairey say that all legislation should be rammed throughout without discussion? If that were so, we might as well dispense with our British Parliamentary system. Certainly, everyone is for pipelines being built so long as the business is properly conducted and we do not destroy our time-honored system of proper debate. Dr. Fairey well knows this or should do.

Individuality Lost

Recently there have been several letters published in your columns from sorrowful residents of Victoria deploring the changes taking place in the name of progress. May I endorse their views, and also make an addition from another angle—that of the tourist.

Lately I have been in U.S.A., where I met on the train and in Seattle two American families. Both expressed identical views: "You come from Vancouver Island, that beautiful spot. Every spring we made a practice of taking a holiday there to enjoy the scenery and the charm of unspoilt Victoria. Now we find changes each year, and not from our point of view for the better. Soon Victoria will have lost its individuality, for it is rapidly becoming an imitation of what we have at home."

Why do we not appreciate what we have, and guard it? Cannot we Canadians develop a seeing eye and appreciate our advantages before it is too late? It is annoying to have criticism from our friendly neighbors across the border, knowing it is only too well deserved.

Harsh Rules for Musicians

The Musicians' Mutual Protective Union of the American Federation of Musicians has divided B.C. into two jurisdictions: (1) the Vancouver local, No. 145, which covers Vancouver, the mainland and Nanaimo, and (2) the Victoria local, No. 247, which covers Victoria and the remainder of Vancouver Island.

As stated in my last letter, by the rules of the AF of M, musicians from one jurisdiction may not solicit engagements in another, without permission from the local executive board; and even when such permission has been granted, the employer pays the local a stand-by fee, a rule which cannot be waived.

The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation is one of our cherished national institutions. As it is not a charitable organization, it must of necessity consider the question of stand-by fees when arranging programs. It would appear that the levying of these fees makes the Vancouver Island instrumentalist an expensive proposition. The CBC broadcasts tape recordings of the Victoria Symphony, relays local programs and engages local artists. Singers are not classified as musicians by the AF of M. The question is, can the CBC afford to use Vancouver Island artists as frequently as the local product?

More relays of live programs through private Victoria stations may be one solution to the problem, but surely the onus does not rest with them. These stations have their purpose, and are doing a fine job of disseminating news and entertainment. A CBC station on the Island may be another solution, or perhaps there could be one union jurisdiction for the whole of B.C.; then the Musicians' Union could live up to its ideal of mutual protection.

Victoria is the capital city of B.C.; her existing artists and the rising generation of musicians should be allowed equal opportunities of expression through their national outlet, without the handicap of stand-by fees.

I am sure that the furtherance of Canadian culture is a desire that lies close to Mr. Petrillo's heart. Perhaps the time has come for him to review the situation in B.C. Did not the present set-up come into being somewhere in the early 1900s?

Broken Bottles

Sunday I took a group of 12 Sunday school children to Elk Lake for a swim. Out of the 12, five got cut with glass thrown into the lake by someone. Two children were cut badly, one on the foot and the other on the knee.

It is too bad people cannot use a little common sense, instead of carelessly throwing broken bottles around where people bathe.

Keep the Fountain

Your advocacy of the retention of the Fountain Circle in its present state is timely.

Many of us have become attached to the idea of a circus in the midst of our transportation difficulties and while it be a round-about way of overcoming the 5 o'clock squeeze-in, nevertheless it functions. We go round the clock, albeit in the opposite direction.

How many cities, after all, can boast of a circus? London, England, is the only one that comes readily to mind. And its advertising appeal means something in these days of endless repetition of four corners and a square. Is there no tourist attraction value in such a situation if we explain it?

The Pandora Avenue lighthouse has disappeared. Now we want to do away with the Fountain Circle. A nation on wheels ought to know better than that!

Sole Survivor of Massacre

Sole adult male survivor of a massacre by Algerian nationalists of an entire village, a wounded man tells his story after being rescued by French troops from a pile of dead bodies. He said nationalists shot and stabbed all 303 men and boys to death and he escaped when a revolver fired at his head put a bullet only through his hat. Nationalists attacked the village because they suspected inhabitants of helping the French.—(CPC)

French Slay 135 In Battle of Caves

ALGIERS (AP) — The French National Liberation Front was reported Wednesday 135 Algerian nationalists have been killed in a three-day battle in caves and ravines of the Grande Kabylie Mountains. Much of the fighting was hand-to-hand.

Altogether 170 Algerians were listed as killed in battles and terroristic attacks in Algeria and in clashes in France. The French admitted losses of 18 killed and 20 wounded.

Feeling ran high among the French in Algiers. A crowd of nearly 6,000 attended the funeral of a 10-year-old French boy killed by one of Monday's terrorist bomb explosions. They yelled anti-nationalist slogans and turned over two automobiles belonging to Algerians.

In France, leaders of the more moderate Algerian Nationalist Movement called a day-long strike to protest against the massacre last week at Melouza, Algeria, when 303 villagers were slain. The French have charged that a rival nationalist group the responsible for the massacre.

An Algerian who tried to go to work at the Citroen automobile plant in a Paris suburb was shot dead. Half a dozen others were fired on or beaten up in the Paris area.

'Learning Truth Again'

VANCOUVER (CP) — A man who spent 11 years in Russian prison camps says his biggest concern is "learning the truth again."

Ernest Graff, 37, arrived here on a flight from Amsterdam Wednesday. He was met by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Graff of Port Alberni.

"I was captured in a German town in 1945 and taken to the Ukraine, where I was beaten and questioned mercilessly for several weeks. My jaw was broken and my nose, too, and I could hardly move from the bruises which covered my body.

"In the end, to keep alive, I had to sign a statement admitting atrocious crimes against civilians. They said I killed 180 of them. I knew this was a lie and they knew it, too, but they paid 500 rubles to several 'witnesses' who testified against me and gave the court the most intimate and factual story of something that never happened."

Graff came to Canada, when he was a year old, with his parents. He returned to Germany 18 years ago to study, living with his grandparents. In 1942 unable to avoid military service any longer, he became a Red Cross ambulance driver.

Graff said the prisoners heard nothing of the outside world.

"The first we heard about atomic bombs was in Stalingrad in 1951, when the Russians told us about this amazing weapon, claiming that they were the sole power in the world to own it."

Graff said he was working in a brick works then, 12 hours a day for an extra 200 grams of bread, bringing his daily ration to 800 grams — slightly less than two pounds.

"Apart from soup made with cabbage leaves and sometimes a few potatoes, we had nothing."

He said Russian civilians were unfriendly until toward the end, when "they seemed to accept us and sometimes some dry bread would be pressed into our hands as we marched to work, but they could not afford it. Their poverty was unbelievable."

Political Roundup

Ontario Leads Provincial Tory Swell

By JAMES R. NELSON

OTTAWA (BUP)—Conservative leader John Diefenbaker, the challenger in this election race, has a greater amount of provincial government support for his campaign than any Tory leader since the 1930s.

In his campaign speeches he has noted that the amount of local enthusiasm for the Conservative party at the federal level this year outranks anything the Tories have had in their 22 years in the political wilderness.

At the same time, Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent's federal Liberals have faced embarrassment at the provincial level, save in Newfoundland.

The Conservatives went into power in 1930 with a tide of Conservative support at the provincial government level. Though the tide may not be as strong this time, it is there—and welcomed by the Conservatives.

Tories' Toughest Fight

A run-down of the situation across the country:

In Newfoundland, Premier Smallwood's Liberal party provincial machine works hand-in-hand with the federal Liberals, led in the province by Citizenship Minister J. W. Pickersgill. The Conservatives know that it is about the toughtest team they have to face in this election.

In Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, the new provincial premiers, Robert Stanfield and Hugh John Fleming, have thrown their full support behind Diefenbaker, appearing on and speaking from the same platforms with him.

In Prince Edward Island, Liberal Premier A. W. (Big Alec) Matheson is supporting the federal Liberals as a matter of course.

In Quebec, Union National Premier Maurice Duplessis has kept aloof from the federal campaign. But at least four of his cabinet ministers are working assiduously to defeat the Liberals. Almost everywhere in the province the local National Union member of the legislature is supporting the local Conservative candidate for the federal house.

In Ontario, Premier Leslie Frost has thrown his powerful support behind Diefenbaker.

Campbell Keeps Aloof

In Manitoba, Liberal Premier D. L. Campbell has been keeping aloof. Campbell wants to keep provincial politics separate from the federal sphere, in view of the fact he must soon face the electorate in a provincial contest. The federal Liberals sought his open support but failed to get it.

In Saskatchewan, CCF Premier T. C. Douglas has been taking some of the campaign burden off ailing CCF national leader M. J. Coldwell, by travelling across the country.

In Alberta, Social Credit Premier Ernest Manning has been campaigning for federal Social Credit candidates, and has travelled outside his province in their support.

In British Columbia, Premier W. A. C. Bennett, Conservative-turned Social Credit, has been throwing the full weight of his provincial administration behind Social Credit candidates with the Liberal and Socialist candidates the chief target.

The strength of support for Diefenbaker's Tory candidates by the National Union Government of Quebec has emerged as the most interesting part of the campaign.

Foreman Dies After Fall

PORT ALBERNI — Wilfred Smith, 40, of 2124 Quimper Street, Victoria, died early yesterday in West Coast General Hospital, some 12 hours after suffering head injuries in a fall at the MacMillan and Bloedel paper mill construction project.

Smith, an ironworker foreman, plunged 40 feet from a beam, striking his head on another beam as he fell. The accident occurred at 2.30 Tuesday afternoon.

The five-day convention will feature a "book fair" of displays by 35 publishing houses, equipment distributors and societies which will be opened to the public by Victoria Daily Times publisher J. Stuart Keate in the lower ballroom of the Crystal Garden at 8 p.m. Tuesday.

Britain's National Playing Fields Association has provided 5,000 football fields and cricket pitches in the last 10 years.

'Little Rhubarb'

Baby Abandoned By 16-Year-Old

VANCOUVER (CP)—The mother of "Little Rhubarb," the newborn baby girl found abandoned in a rhubarb patch, is a 16-year-old girl.

This was learned by police Wednesday after a four-week search.

The girl told police her mother did not know of her pregnacy.

She said she gave birth to the baby alone at 9.30 p.m. May 14 at her home.

When the baby was born, she wrapped it in paper and took it out to a rhubarb patch in a lane on Quebec Street. She said she just planned to hide it there overnight and then take it to General Hospital the next morning.

The baby was born prematurely in the sixth month.

The baby's mother plans to sign papers putting the infant out for adoption. More than 50 people offered to adopt the child within days after it was found.

Do You Want Deficit Depression Financing?

In the thirties, Canada ran an annual deficit in the national budget to overcome hardship.
Diefenbaker has promised so many tax cuts and so much extra spending that he would have an annual deficit of 1.3 BILLION dollars in times of prosperity. Is this a return to the thirties?

Want Some Gold?

NANAIMO — If what Nanaimo business man Horace Elgie says is true, there's likely to be a gold rush in the upper Vancouver Island area shortly.

Mr. Elgie told Kiwanis Tuesday that traces of the yellow stuff could be found anywhere in the creeks and streams of Vancouver Island north of Nanaimo.

He wants to see an amateur prospectors' club started here, backed by local business men. Brandishing a miner's pick and a gold pan, he urged that fishermen include the items in their equipment.

Mr. Elgie, a long-time amateur prospector, passed around a bottle containing three and one-half ounces of gold, worth about $200.

He had found it in the upper reaches of the Fraser River. But he was not so concerned about the Fraser, "which holds gold by the millions," as he was about the mineral wealth of Vancouver Island.

An amateur prospectors' club might unearth untold wealth in mineral deposits, he considered.

Island Chambers Send Resolutions

Highways, Education Head List

Resolutions calling for highways, power policy, school curriculum changes, retention of government offices, tourist markers and rural planning will be thrashed out at the 39th annual meeting at Grouse Nest Resort at Sooke June 18 and 19 of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Vancouver Island.

Most controversial resolution submitted to date is a request to curb school costs by limiting curriculum to "essentials," extending the school year and imposing tighter budget controls.

Proposed by the Sidney and North Saanich Chamber of Commerce, the resolution will meet stiff opposition from the Victoria chamber.

Forrest L. Shaw, chairman of Victoria chamber's civic affairs group, said B.C. would fall 50 years behind all other educational systems if the industrial arts program was dropped from secondary schooling, as resolved by the Sidney group.

The peninsula chamber suggested a half-hour increase in the school day and a full 10-month school year with abolition of classes that "waste" time of students and teachers —physical education, drama, industrial arts and household economics.

The chamber also resolved that "under no circumstances" shall school boards be allowed to increase budgets by more than 10 per cent in any year without approval of referendum from the ratepayers.

In other resolutions, the Duncan-Cowichan chamber seeks the designation of the Island Highway as route 101 in line with the renumbering of B.C.'s mainland north-south roads connecting with similarly numbered roads in the U.S.

Sayward chamber will press for extension of the Island Highway north from the Sayward-Kelsey Bay area, and the Tofino group will urge an immediate start on the government portion of the proposed Port Alberni-Tofino road.

Ucluelet-Port Alberni chamber has submitted a resolution urging the department of recreation and conservation to establish park sites at Long Beach and Kennedy Lake before completition of the Port Alberni-Ucluelet road.

The Victoria chamber will express its concern over talk of removal of some government agencies from the capital to the mainland.

The government will be asked to lay plans to provide buildings and other accommodation in the city and other points on Vancouver Island "adequate to the degree of expansion being experienced."

Extension of the Industrial Development Bank's services to embrace the tourist industry will also be sought by the Victoria group so that better credit facilities will be made available to operators of hotels, motels, cafes, dining rooms and allied businesses.

Ship Grows in Brooklyn

Unusual street scene in Coney Island section of Brooklyn, N.Y., occurred when 23-ton, all-steel cruiser built in his backyard by Michael Debari was hauled out for launching. It took Debari seven years to build the craft, which is 44 feet long with a 12-foot beam.—(CPC)

Chiang Warns British Ships

TAIPEI, Formosa (UP) — The Chinese Nationalist government warned yesterday that British vessels entering Communist Chinese ports do so at their own risk.

The warning, issued by a high military spokesman, coincided with yesterday's formal easing by Britain of the strategic goods embargo against Communist China.

The spokesman, Rear-Adm. Liu Ho-tu, declared the British action would not change the seven-year-old Nationalist policy designed to seal off China ports.

President Chiang Kai-shek's government declared all China mainland ports closed to foreign vessels on Feb. 12, 1950. The edict covered all ports south from Manchuria to the Indo-China border.

Since then Nationalist warships and shore batteries on Matsu and Quemoy Islands have enforced a partial blockade. A number of British and other foreign ships have been damaged by gunfire.

Taipei reports earlier this year said the Nationalists had decided to stop firing on British vessels in a move to promote closer relations between the two countries.

But published reports here yesterday said Nationalist armed forces were under orders to block all ships trying to carry strategic materials to China.

Formosa Foes

Collapse Of Chiang Predicted

TOKYO (AP) — Leaders of a group of Formosans who oppose Chinese Nationalist domination of their island declared yesterday "the Chiang Kai-shek government is on the brink of collapse."

The statement was issued by Thomas Liao, president of an organization in Tokyo calling itself the Provisional Government of the Republic of Formosa. It claims to represent 3,000,000 Formosans on the island and in exile in Japan.

Formosa's population is about 8,000,000, including several million Chinese who fled from the mainland after the Communist Chinese victory.

Liao said the anti - American riots May 24 represent a "dagger at Chiang's throat" which will end his regime on the island. He said his group has set up a cabinet and is waging an underground campaign in Japan and Formosa against what he called Chiang's "dictatorship."

Rats Swarm in Yard

DAYTON, Ohio (UP) — Authorities here have taken into custody a modern "Pied Piper of Hamlin" whose back yard was a playground for "between [illegible]

* * *

The sheriff's office said an 80-year-old woman has been encouraging the rats to live in her back yard "for a number of years" by feeding them grain and bread.

Deputy Dorothy Lochner, who declined to name the woman, said she was placed in custody yesterday while authorities initiate proceedings in Probate Court to determine if she should be committed to a hospital.

Mrs. Lochner described the rodents as "common sewer rats, some 14 inches long."

She said the woman fed the rats daily and they played all the time in her yard "like kittens."

"When I visited her the first time, I didn't get too close because of the rats," Mrs. Lochner added.

"They were hanging from shrubbery around her home and the house is honeycombed with rat holes."

Mrs. Lochner said she didn't know if the woman had been bitten by rats, "but she had puncture marks on her legs, possibly from the rodents."

Red River Threat To Four States

DALLAS, Tex. (UP)—Red River, fed by heavy rains at its headwaters and the runoff from its tributaries, rose steadily yesterday, threatening new floods in the flood-battered southwest.

In addition, millions of barrels of water were spilling into it over the spillway of Lake Texoma, the largest man-made lake in the world. Four states were threatened.

The most immediate threat appeared to be to Texas and Oklahoma, which are separated by Lake Texoma. But a weather bureau official said the river was already bank-full in Arkansas and Louisiana. "It is worse by far than it has been all year," he said.

VIEWS OF SPORT

By Red Smith

If baseball is strictly a business with profit as the be-all and end-all, then there is only one important factor to be considered by Walter O'Malley and Horace Stoneham, proprietors of the oldest established permanent floating crap games in New York: How much more money would they make in Los Angeles and San Francisco than in Brooklyn and Manhattan?

There is no doubt here that the prospector who sinks his pick in Los Angeles real estate will strike a vein of pure gold. It is a city of two and a quarter million—about a half million smaller than Brooklyn—that has clamored for big league ball for years.

The citizenry is conditioned to outdoor entertainments and enthusiastic about sports; some of America's largest crowds squint red-eyed through smog to watch Los Angeles football games and horse races. In character it is a gee-whiz town, a pitchman's paradise that cuddles up to Townsend Plans, faith healers, Aimee McPherson, sports cars and Gorgeous George.

Phrenologists thumbing the Angeleno skull discover a grossly enlarger "civic booster" bump. If and when O'Malley sets up his tripod and keister in Pershing Square, the populace will enlist in a holy crusade to outdo the box office frenzy of Milwaukee.

City of Lovely Fog

San Francisco is something else again. More sophisticated than the neon Ninevah to the south, the loveliest and gayest of American cities is about half Los Angeles' size, smaller than St. Louis or Washington, roughly comparable to Milwaukee or Pittsburgh.

In Coast League baseball, night games have destroyed attendance by day, and San Francisco's evening weather is ruinous to business by night. In the first flush of enthusiasm over a big league team, it might be possible to re-educate San Francisco to afternoon ball, but the chances are that in the long run it would become necessary to heat the park for night games.

Bill Veeck says this is no great problem. After he was squeezed out of the majors, the former head of the Indians and Browns made a survey of big league possibilities on the coast. He can cite yards of figures on the cost of installing and operating a heating plant in a grandstand.

It isn't known here just how carefully Stoneham has studied the San Francisco situation or how attractive are the invitations from the city and television sponsors. Stoneham hasn't scorched his bridges the way O'Malley has. By playing footsie with Los Angeles, the Dodgers' president has alienated Brooklyn fans, and if he isn't serious about moving then he has led Los Angeles a reckless romp. Good will is important to his coast operation; if he should back off now he'd get a name for himself in southern California, and it wouldn't be Pal Wally.

Lip-Service to a Myth

On his return from the National League meeting where permission to move was granted, O'Malley had, the papers reported, "a word of advise for the Flatbush faithful."

"The important thing for Brooklyn fans," he said, "is to support the Dodgers as they have been doing."

Perhaps because they are slaves to vice of public speaking, baseball men achieve a state of auto-hypnosis in which they see nothing illogical or incongruous in statements like that made in circumstances like these. Operating on the same profit-and-loss principles as any other business, they pretend to be engaged in some kind of public service and they prattle unblushingly about "fan suppot(" and "loyalty," demanding from their customers an uncritical, dog-like devotion that no railroad or delicatessen or coal mine would dare to claim.

Baseball is a business run for profit, employing professionals from far places who play for pay. Except for the "B" on his cap and the location of the park where he sometimes plays, Duke Snider of California, has no ties with the borough of Brooklyn, nor has Pee Wee Reese, of Louisville, or Sandy Amoros, of Cuba.

They have become godlings in Brooklyn because we are a nation of sentimentalists who deify paid entertainers in any medium—the stage, the screen, television, baseball.

It Can't Happen Here?

Regarding baseball as a vehicle of public entertainment and nothing more, it is difficult to imagine New York as a one-club city with its turnstiles idle three hundred days of the year. The thought of a major league baseball season in which a Stan Musial or Willie Mays or Robin Roberts wouldn't appear in New York seems as fantastic as a vaudeville season would have been without Norah Bayes or Blossom Seeley playing the Palace.

To be sure, Boston and St. Louis and Philadelphia felt the same way a few years ago, but in those cases the financial pinch was far tighter than in New York, where the Giants drew 629,179 last year and the Dodgers 1,213,562.

Regarding baseball as a business, it is equally difficult to believe the National League would back away from the greatest market in the world. Don't bet it can't happen, though. If there were no short-sighted people, occulists would starve.

Mask proved scant protection to New York Yankee catcher Yogi Berra last night when foul tip smashed bar and drove it into his face. Wound is covered by adhesive tape and trainer Gus Mauch says that Berra has a slight nose fracture. X-rays will be taken today to determine extent of injury. Yogi is holding the piece of metal which inflicted the wound.—(AP Photofax.)

Bionda's Five Goals Move Rocks into Lead

By IAN GLENDAY

Colorful Jack Bionda, a lacrosse player in a class by himself, and a 16-year-old product of the Victoria minor boxla ranks combined last night to lead the Victoria Shamrocks into first place in the Inter-City Lacrosse League.

Bionda, who will break Bobby Allan's league scoring record of 127 points if he keeps up his present pace, turned in one of his finest efforts of the season before some 2,200 Memorial Arena fans by scoring five goals and adding two assists in the Rocks' 9-7 win over the spirited New Westminster Salmonbellies.

	GP	W	L	GF	GA	Pts.
VICTORIA	12	7	5	145	122	14
Nanaimo	10	6	4	110	122	12
Vancouver	11	5	6	109	106	10
New Westminster	11	4	7	102	114	8

Last night's score: New Westminster 7, VICTORIA 9.

Next game: tonight, Nanaimo at New Westminster.

Slender Tommy Wyatt, one of Victoria's outstanding juvenile players who was making his home debut for the Irish, scored only one goal but it was a big one—breaking a 6-6 third-quarter deadlock and giving the Rocks the spark they needed to chalk up their third straight victory.

Shamrocks, solid pre-season favorites to walk away with the league title, pulled two points ahead of the Timbermen, who have two games in hand, and boast their biggest winning streak of the season. Two of the victories came on the road after the Rocks lost four straight times away from home.

Bionda, at his colorful best and appearing to toy with the opposition, picked up three goals and two assists in the opening half as he boosted his point total to 47 on the league's high of 31 goals and 16 assists. Line-mate Pee Wee Bradshaw proved a big help to the lanky forward with his hustling play, and he added a goal and an assist.

Shamrocks didn't have an easy time last night as the Salmonbellies played one of their best games at Memorial Arena during the past three seasons and were always a threat, scoring three straight goals for a 5-5 deadlock in the second period and again tying the count at 6-6 after a Bionda score.

Checking well and playing a deliberate style of lacrosse, the Salmonbellies threatened to take the lead but Wyatt spoiled the visitors' plans when he slipped a shot past Stan Joseph into the corner at 9.55 of the third quarter.

LOSERS RALLY

Bionda scored his fourth goal 16 seconds later, added his fifth at 1.30 of the fourth quarter and the Rocks had a three-goal edge. But the Salmonbellies weren't through. Vern Wilkie scored at 8.30 and New Westminster pressed from there forcing Geordie Johnston to make several great saves and controlling play in the last five minutes.

Johnston made 10 of his 26 saves in the final quarter while Joseph, always good against the Rocks, blocked 28 shots including 10 in the first quarter.

OVERTIME: Jake Proctor, the wily New Westminster coach, promised before the season that he wouldn't play if the league would put through the transfers of Stan Joseph and Bus Byford from Pilseners. The request was granted, now Proctor wants to return to action and threatens to play even if he doesn't receive permission. The arena floor was treacherous last night with the players barely able to keep their feet, and bleach was used on the shoes after the first quarter to help overcome the slippery floor . . . Although it's still not official, the league commission is expected to toss out most of the new rules introduced before the season. League officials met Monday to decide the issue after giving the new rules a 10-game trial. Joseph livened up proceedings last night when he raced to mid-floor after a loose ball. The bulky netminder lost his mask and some of his dignity when his rapid several times but the Rocks failed to take advantage, Al Gill hitting the post with the net empty.

White Sox Hold Margin Over Yankees; Reds Foil Phils; Dodgers Now Second

Chicago's sizzling White Sox yesterday rolled to their 19th win in their last 24 games to maintain their five-game lead over the New York Yankees, again unleashing power to improve their second-place grip.

Dick Donovan, winning his fourth in a row and completing what he started for the fifth time this season, held Boston Red Sox to eight hits and pitched the last six innings scoreless.

Meanwhile, his teammates banged away at two Bosox pitchers for 11 hits, two each by Luis Aparicio, Nellie Fox, Sherm Lollar and Dave Philley.

Ted Williams raised his batting average to .401 with a double and single for the losers.

The Yankees, meanwhile clobbered Cleveland Indians, 13-3, with Gil McDougald driving in five runs with his first two home runs of the season.

Mickey Mantle hit his 12th and Bill Skowron his seventh in a 16-hit attack which made it easy for comebacking Bobby Shantz.

Shantz, who now has a 6-1 record and has won five in a row, gave up seven hits, two of them home runs by Chico Carrasquel and Jim Hegan.

In the National League, Cincinnati Reds stalled off the threat posed by Philadelphia Phils, winning 4-2 in an 11-inning battle to increase their lead to two games.

An error set up a tie-breaking, pinch-hit triple by Larry Lynch after the Reds had scored a run in the ninth to force extra innings.

Brooklyn Dodgers moved into second place, a half game ahead of the Phils, as their young pitchers continued to carry the load.

Twenty-year-old Don Drysdale came through with his first major league shutout, holding the Chicago Cubs to five hits for a 4-0 win, his fifth in seven decisions this year.

NINE HOME RUNS

There was action aplenty at New York, where Milwaukee Braves edged past the Giants, 9-8, in a game which produced nine home runs, six by the losers.

Willie Mays hit his 10th for the Giants, Hank Sauer his eighth and ninth, Whitey Lockman his third and Red Schoendienst his fifth and sixth to account for seven runs. Unfortunately, the last four home runs came with the bags empty.

Joe Adcock and winning pitcher Ernie Johnson each hit three-run homers for the Braves and Bobby Thomson hit one with the bases empty.

The output of nine was one below the National League record and two fewer than the major league high of 11, set by the Yankees (6) and Detroit Tigers (5) in August, 1950.

Lions Appoint Co-Ordinator For B.C. Grid

VANCOUVER (CP)—B.C. Lions of the Western Interprovincial Football Union announced Wednesday the appointment of Jack Armour as "co-ordinator" of minor football throughout the province.

Armour, physical education instructor at Britannia High School here, has been a minor football coach since 1950.

He will be the Lions' official talent scout in the minor leagues, will supervise the distribution of minor football grants, work with the minor leagues to raise the standard of coaching, assist in starting and improving football in other sections of B.C., and schedule and distribute training films.

For this season, Lions have budgeted more than $22,000 for minor football development.

Speedway's Big-Car Opener Attracts Best U.S. Drivers

Many of the leading cars and drivers from the northwestern United States will be competing in the opening big-car race of the season at Western Speedway on Saturday night.

Lured north by the record purses, several of which have been over the $1,000 mark, that have been picked up by Vancouver Island drivers in stock-car shows and the addition of pavement, a possible entry of 14 Washington and Oregon cars is expected.

The list of American drivers is an impressive one and includes several familiar to Victoria racing fans. The track record for big cars, set two years ago by Del Fanning, will undoubtedly be broken several times during time trials, which start at 7.30.

Trials will be followed by the regular trophy dash, heat races and the main event.

Among the Oregon entries is Ernie Koch, who will be behind the wheel of Tom Nehl's fuel-injected GMC. Koch, points leader in 1955, is leading the Americans in points so far this season and will be out to add to his total Saturday.

Points earned here will count towards their point total for the season, a factor which will encourage most of the top drivers in the Northwest to appear here.

Frank McGowen, driving another fuel-injected GMC; Cokey Williams and his overhead Nash; Ed Kane, at the wheel of Arnie Allen's fuel-injected Mercury, and Tom Polley in a GMC, are other Oregon drivers expected.

Victorian Bob Simpson will drive Bob Scovaell's D. O. Hal.

Fanning will be on hand in his "Bagdad Special" and Cliff Spaulding, another well-known Washington car jockey, will be driving a new roadster built by Les Wallschin and boasting an Offenhauser motor.

Bob McLees, in Bob Creighton's Buick V8, Pike Green in Glen Nickell's Mercury, Bob Burgess in a GMC, Ron Weiskine in a Mercury, John Ellis in a Chevrolet V8, Bud Beavert in Oscar Lofquist's Mercury, and Jerry Sprinder in a GMC are other Washington drivers expected.

Local cars are expected to have a tough time against such standout U.S. competition, but Al Coutts, Fred Hayton, Ron Douglas, Corky Thomas, Bill Chester, Fred Carsen, Chub Elliton, Smitty Smith, Willie Lou and Dave Cooper will be out trying.

Cooper will be driving Dick Mark's Mercury, the only Victoria car expected to give the invaders any serious competition.

Grant King has purchased a Kurtis Kraft midget Offenhauser and will attempt to stretch it out to sprint-car specifications in time for Saturday's meet. If he does, Ed Kostenuk will do the driving.

As an extra attraction, world-champion stunt driver Bill Ward will again be on hand. He will repeat the exhibition of high-ski driving and car rolling and will climax his performance in a dynamite-laden stunt.

'Spurs Rout Manitoba As Stokes Gets Five

WINNIPEG (CP)—The touring Tottenham Hotspur, paced by inside left Alf Stokes' five goals, swamped Manitoba All-Stars 12-0 here Wednesday night in an exhibition soccer game before about 4,000 fans.

Taking advantage of the wind in the first half, the English club piled up a 7-0 lead against vastly outclassed Manitoba.

Tottenham travels to Toronto Saturday and Montreal Sunday for games against the touring Glasgow Celtics before returning home.

Terry Dyson, diminutive outside left, added three more goals for the Spurs. Outside right Michael Dulin, who played only the first half, scored two and inside right Tommy Harmer and centre forward David Dunmore one apiece.

Potent Pep-Up Pills Condemned As Harmful to 'Super-Athletes'

NEW YORK (AP)—The American Medical Association ordered a study Wednesday into "shocking" reports of dangerous abuse of potent pep-up pills by athletes, including high school kids.

One physician said willy-nilly use of stimulant drugs may "produce violent, rapacious and criminal behavior" and harmful physical effects.

The action came in a resolution by delegates of the AMA condemning indiscriminate use of such drugs as amphetamine and derivatives. They called for a study by AMA trustees and forceful action to halt any abuses of drugs to make players "super-athletes."

Explaining the move, Dr. Herbert Berger of New York said some drug addicts may get started by taking amphetamine and other stimulants while in college or school athletics.

He stated there are widespread reports amphetamine is being used throughout the country either by athletes themselves or their coaches.

Dr. Berger said the drug can change the whole behavior of normal or keyed-up people.

"A boy taking the pills will fight anyone, even someone bigger, drive a car 95 miles an hour, do anything. I think parents should know about these drugs and their effects."

Dr. Berger said the "recent rash of four-minute miles is no coincidence. When I was a college boy, the four-minute miles was as unlikely as flying to the moon."

Ten men have run the mile under four minutes 16 times.

"In one nationally-televised football game, the coach went onto the field and sprayed something into the noses of every one of his players," Dr. Berger said.

"When asked why, he said, 'they have colds.' Did all of them have colds, and if so, why were they playing?"

Seals Hold Lead

Mounties Keep Pace; Erautt Blanks Bevos

Vancouver Mounties got four-hit pitching from Ed Erautt last night and trounced Portland Beavers, 8-0, in the first game of their series, but the San Francisco Seals held on to the Pacific Coast Baseball League lead by edging Hollywood Stars, 3-2.

Erautt struck out four and didn't walk a man as he recorded his second victory in three starts since coming to the Mounties from San Diego.

At Hollywood, Jack Phillips had three hits in four trips and singled in the winning run.

Heavily-Backed Crepello Wins Derby

Crepello, the most heavily favored starter in 10 years and already hailed as a "super horse" of British turf, outran American-owned Ballymoss in the final 200 yards Wednesday to win the 178th English Derby at famed Epsom Downs.

... a total purse of $[illegible] of which $[illegible] went to the winner.

... including Queen Elizabeth saw Crepello beat Ballymoss by a length and a half at odds of 6 to 4 to add the second jewel of Britain's triple crown to the 2,000 Guinea Stakes he won at Newmarket, May 1.

Ballymoss, owned by John Mulcahy, of Philadelphia, went in front with only a furlong left in the mile and a half classic but had to settle for second place, a length and a half ahead of Pipe of Peace, a 100 to 8 shot owned by Greek shipping magnate Stavros Niarchos. Ballymoss was 33 to 1 in the betting.

"I don't like to be wakened at seven in the morning for nothing. I usually get up at 7 o'clock."

But a few minutes later he got a suitcase in a station wagon and drove away with his wife and two children.

Mrs. Annie Hammond of Vancouver, 70-year-old widow who was visiting a daughter in Winnipeg when she won $56,000 on second place Ballymoss said: "I've got a lot of relatives I can help.

"I'm a pensioner and I get about $100 a month," she added. "Living with my son, I find that quite ample for my old age."

Mrs. Hammond said 13 had always been her lucky number. She chose the 13th ticket in a sweepstakes book and used the nom-de-plume "Lucky 13." It was her first sweepstake ticket, and she bought it because her best friend won $28,000 in a sweep a year ago.

In Ontario, $140,000 winners were Donald Leatson of Packenham, a machine operator, and Toronto shoe store employee George Farrow. Second-prize winners were Mrs. E. Cross of Hamilton and Herbert Lolles of St. Catharines.

Third prizes of $28,000 went to Mrs. R. E. Dignan, Drumheller, Alta.; T. D. O'Neill, Midland, Ont., and J. H. Powell, Ottawa. In Quebec a striking aluminum company worker, Roland Lavoie, 40, of Chicoutimi, won top prize of $22,000 in the Quebec Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans Association sweepstake on the race.

In Victoria, Mrs. Kathleen Bones, 1782 Carrick, won $2,100 when Mystic Prince finished out of the money. Two 19-year-olds, Flo Peacock, 398 Rainbow, and Leslie Lowres, West Saanich Road, will share about $280 for their ticket on non-starter Master Effort.

Mrs. Bones, who had planned to return to her native Northern Ireland, said she'll use the money on "household necessities including a washing machine."

Bingo Cash for Gorge Has Park String to It

Dedication Rider Threatens Scheme

The Victoria Kinsmen Club made a firm offer last night to spend its $22,000 bingo money on Gorge Park development but added a rider that could quash the long-discussed plan completely.

[illegible] parks committee that Victoria would first have to dedicate the area as a park. The club would [illegible] from [illegible] ...

"We don't want to put $20,000 or $30,000 into it and then have it subdivided into commercial lots at some time in the future," Mr. Mossop said.

[illegible]

It should be called 'Kinsmen Gorge Park.' The city engineering department should draw up the necessary plans and the annual portion of the beaches and parks grant that would be spent on Gorge maintenance ($2,500 was mentioned last year) be turned over to the Kinsmen.

Mr. Mossop said the club would [illegible] ...

The committee voted to endorse the Kinsmen proposal and refer it to Victoria city council with the recommendation that the area be dedicated as a park.

[illegible] council was saying it will not dedicate Gorge Park, or the city-owned Beaver and Elk Lake areas in Saanich as permanent parks.

Is This the Biggest?

It isn't the biggest aspidistra in the world, but Mrs. Carl Walter, 601 Trutch, proudly showing off her beautiful white-mottled-green leaves, does make it the biggest of its kind in Victoria. (Colonist photo by Rod Kirkmann.)

Labor Backs IWA

Victoria Labor Council last night promised full support for the International Woodworkers of America should the [illegible] members strike.

[illegible]

Mr. Morris charged that the recommendations of a conciliation board that negotiations with coast operators be postponed to Sept. 30 "is a trap to delay and confuse a strike vote to suit the interests of the employers."

[illegible]

"I tell this council that it is a trap intended to deprive all of us of any real bargaining strength because it is intended to steal away our right to strike at a time when we can strike with chances of success."

If the delay was accepted, the IWA would be [illegible] a strike vote in the Christmas season, he said.

If this [illegible] stand, Mr. Morris said [illegible] on conciliation boards [illegible] the free [illegible] join the proceedings [illegible] the commissioner of the city [illegible]

What's Cooking!

By Frances Thompson

Basic Recipes for Two

[illegible] If you are one of them we [illegible] all the more in the [illegible] world. As you know, whether of lamb, veal or pork a newly wed or a wife of many years, food plays a very important part [illegible] to hold that man than to feed him well, wisely and economically. So if you don't know as much as those fleshpots [illegible] how to look happy up and learn. Most newly weds have to go very carefully on the budget and make a little at first buys go extra sagaciously, doubtless because she thinks in terms of cash rather stopped [illegible] a large family.

Planning and cooking for two is really not hard but it takes common sense. Study his likes and dislikes by all means but make sure he's getting the right KIND of food. For instance, if he doesn't like to drink milk see that he gets his daily quota in minimum of half a pint in soups, puddings, creamed dishes and such like. If he turns up his nose at salads, subtly serve crisp celery, radishes, carrot sticks, etc. And set the example by nibbling happily on these vitamin-rich raw foods your self—meantime slyly passing them to him.

[illegible] questions frequently asked by [illegible]

Have left-over vegetables and nourishment? Not nearly as much as those freshly cooked. So try to cook only what the two of you can consume at one meal. Since vegetables are such an important part of the daily diet cook small quantities of them in one pot by wrapping each kind in a moistened square of cooking parchment before plunging them into boiling water. Or choose a saucepan or pressure cooker with three separate electrical controls.

Is it safe to have standard size recipes?

Obviously some recipes can easily be halved but remember in consequence most of them will take less time to cook. [illegible] design pie pastry [illegible] small quantities to make.

If I'm dividing a recipe which calls for only one egg, how do I halve the egg?

Quite a simple matter—beat the egg, measure it in tablespoons and use half the amount. The remainder can be added to scrambled eggs next morning. Or use a small pullet egg.

When [illegible] for one is from [illegible] breakfast when we [illegible] to work? Yes, because the [illegible] is quite rich in vita[illegible]

[illegible] the amount [illegible] be saved a happy guesstimate to equate the quantity of vitamins in a scanty glass of orange fruit juice.

Why don't they make smaller sizes of canned goods? [illegible] are beginning to [illegible]. For instance vegetable juices and fruit juices on counter is quite a [illegible]. As I have said more before, these [illegible] of [illegible] foods are often most useful for mixing into recipes for two. And have you seen the [illegible] of various condiment sauces [illegible] on the [illegible]?

Humor—Traveller's Greatest Asset

BY ANITA COLBY

[illegible] Another thing you'll have to adjust to is European money. Francine for instance, never did learn the number of francs in the American dollar. So for the most minor [illegible] she did until she faced up to the fact that she would either have to learn simple division or cut her trip short.

And this advice is not dispatched from an ivory tower. It comes from a traveller who learned the hard way that no matter how careful a girl may be about her travel arrangements, an awful lot of things will go wrong. At which point she can either dissolve into tears, ruining her make-up as well as her fun, or she can dredge up a chuckle to smooth over the occasion.

Cure for Lawn Moss

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

Every time a [illegible] on me about [illegible] that at least one other [illegible] will be found [illegible] lawns are infested with moss and [illegible] to know some quick and easy [illegible]

Moss seems to be particularly bad this year, probably because of the heavy rainfall we had last winter and I'm sorry to say that there just isn't any quick and easy way of correcting this condition.

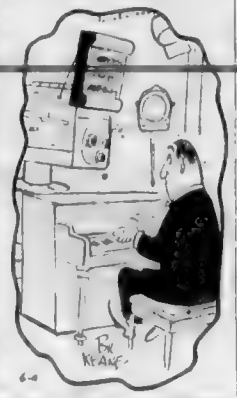
TV TALK

By Bruce Lowther

More about one-shot special shows next season adding to the long list of NBC events published here yesterday.

For Producers Showcase Shirley Temple will emcee these one hour [illegible] Hansel and Gretel, [illegible]'s Travels Ali Baba Rumpelstilskin Emperor's Clothes Princess Who Could Not Laugh Legend of Sleepy Hollow Mother Goose Aesop's Fables Dick Whittington Nightingale Valiant Little Tailor The Little Prince Beauty and the Beast Land of Counterpane Rose and the Ring and The Magic Fishbone.



Also at NBC Art Linkletter is working on six one-hour travelogues. Over at CBS in addition to many specials listed here in past weeks there may be seven one hour travelogues with Lowell Thomas and a TV life of oldtime singer Belle Baker, who died recently.

Mickey Rooney's new five-year contract with CBS gives him a Playhouse 90 show several other specials and a weekly series. Rooney's recent George M. Cohan stint on TV was successful enough for Cohan's estate to plan a similar thing on Broadway.

CBS also plans next season a rodeo and possibly some parades festivals, a circus auto shows and trade fairs.

* * *

Federal election campaign on TV ends with speeches by the party leaders on channel 2 two at 10 p.m. today and the other two at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow. Lee Harbers's Island Sportsman goes in 30 minutes on channel 6, with Colonist publisher Seth Hale as a guest tonight. Playhouse 90 has a filmed western and good movies are "Drums" Gilbert and Sullivan and "Sahara."

* * *

TV BITS: CBS has bought 39 old Honeymooners shows from Jackie Gleason for $7,000,000 for next season. CBS wants Gleason to do six specials next season including Harvey, but he says no. . . Honeymooners, Medic, George Gobel Requiem for a Heavyweight Telephone Time Kraft Theatre and Robert Montgomery Presents have won the first annual writing awards of the Writers Guild of America. . . The Arlene Francis show replaces Home August 1 and NBC now is thinking of replacing Tonight with nightly mystery drama. . . The $1,000,000 Frank Sinatra gets for his 29 ABC shows next season will go after taxes into trust funds for his first wife Nancy and their two children.

KEEP TRYING DIVISION: Lou Powell a mail clerk at RKO in Hollywood has sold a script entitled "Six Bullets" to Zane Grey Theatre. . . In Venezuela a CBS official was jailed for refusing to sell I Love Lucy reruns to a local TV station. His reason they hadn't paid their past bills.

Ex-Commissioner Suggests:

Firms Exploiting B.C. Should Train Indians

A suggestion that big companies coming into B.C. to develop natural resources be asked by the government to take a hand in training of Indians was made by T. W. S. Parsons, commissioner for many years of the now defunct B.C. Provincial Police, when he spoke to Victoria section, B.C. Historical Association.

Mr. Parsons said: "If the earth, and the fullness thereof, is for all people, why not, when concessions are sought, see to it that the concessionaires provide an annual contribution especially earmarked for the furtherance of vocational training best suited to the interests of the Indians living within the periphery of those concessions.

"Few mining, oil, lumber or other industrial interests could possibly object to this. On the contrary, they would just jump at the opportunity."

The history of many Indian tribes, and the contributions they have made to B.C., was outlined by Mr. Parsons, who came to know the Indians well during his long and active career, which began in B.C. in 1912.

Sclerosis Sufferers Being Listed

Victoria and Vancouver Island chapter of the Multiple Sclerosis Society is attempting to compile a complete list of Island residents suffering from the disease.

The group already has a list of 150 names. Sufferers are invited to send their names and addresses to Mrs. Lorna Millard, 1164 Esquimalt Road.

Suggestion that a complete list be made was put forward by Dr. Marion Sherman at a meeting of the chapter Tuesday night. Transportation, accommodation, facilities and types of treatment were also discussed at the meeting.

Three Milk Records

Carnation, Daphne Put a Spurt On

Yearly output of more than 32 tons of milk was claimed by three purebred Holstein cows at the farm of William Taylor, Saanichton.

Highest output was from Heather Bank Grebegga Carnation, which, over a 305-day period with three milkings a day, grossed 24,436 pounds of milk with an average of 3.92 per cent butterfat.

This record is the third largest for fat in her class in Canada.

Carnation, a six-year-old, also holds four previous records, as a two, three, four and five-year-old.

Other prize-winning cows on the team are Norloch Dauntless Daphne and Norloch Sylvo Ada.

Daphne completed a senior three-year-old record in the 365-day division with twice-a-day milkings of 18,598 pounds while Ada completed the record for fat in this class.

Ada's record stands tenth for all time for fat in this class. She produced 21,685 pounds of milk containing 966 pounds of fat, an average of 4.45 per cent butterfat.

Executive secretary-treasurer, also re-elected, is Mrs. Dorothy McLennan, of Vancouver. Mrs. Doris Hampson, Vancouver, was made assistant secretary. Vice-presidents installed were: Mrs. Louise Breedon, Vancouver; Mrs. K. Middleton, Trail; Mrs. E. Armishaw, Nanaimo; Mrs. A. Maxtead, Seattle; Mrs. Margaret Cooke, New Westminster; Mrs. Ida Grant, Cranbrook; Mrs. Dorothy Cowan, Vernon; and Mrs. A. Ramsey, Okanagan Falls.

MRS. A. E. MACDONALD

Funeral Services Held For City Accountant

Funeral services for William Stanley Rowbottom were held yesterday at McCall's funeral home.

Mr. Rowbottom died Sunday after a long illness. He is survived by his wife, Gladys, 412 Dallas, and relatives in England.

He joined the provincial civil service as an accountant in 1922 on his arrival from England, and at the time of his death held the position of commissioner of income tax, assessor and collector of probate and succession duties, assessor and collector of probate fees, director of taxation, inspector of trust companies and inspector of savings and loan companies.

Mr. Rowbottom helped found the Victoria chapter of the Certified General Accountants' Association of B.C. in 1946 and was president of the provincial board of governors in 1952 and 1953.

An enthusiastic and competent athlete, Mr. Rowbottom was a five-pin bowler, a member of the executive of the Camosun Tennis Club and a badminton player.

He was a member of Henderson Masonic Lodge No. 84 and the Scottish Rite.

AUCTION SALE OF CROWN LOGS HELD AT BUTTLE LAKE

There will be offered for sale at public auction at 1.30 p.m. on Thursday, June 20th, 1957, in the office of the District Forester, Marine Building, Vancouver, B.C., Parcel No. 2, consisting of approximately 487,000 cubic feet of Fir, Cedar, Hemlock, Balsam, White Pine, Crown logs, boom sticks and boom chains which are presently in rampon booms. The logs in Parcel No. 2 will be auctioned in three lots designated Lots 1, 2 and 3.

The above logs may be inspected from the date of this advertisement up to and including the date of auction at the viewing grounds on Buttle Lake.

Arrangements for inspection of these logs must be made with the Fire and Security Officer of the British Columbia Power Commission at the John Hart Generating Station.

The purchaser will be required to enter into an agreement with the British Columbia Power Commission for removal of these logs from Buttle Lake.

Further particulars may be obtained from the District Forester, Vancouver, B.C., or from the Forest Ranger, Campbell River, B.C.

Provided that anyone who is unable to attend the public auction in person may submit a sealed tender to be opened at the hour of auction and treated as one bid.

Conservatory Head To Visit Victoria

Dr. Ettore Mazzoleni, principal of the school of music at the Royal Conservatory of Music in Toronto, and four other staff members will conduct current examinations here for the conservatory June 10 to 26.

The principal will be here for one day, June 22, and examiner Pierre Souvairan, a Swiss-born pianist, will be in Victoria during most of the examinations.

Reginald Geen, Ontario organist and choirmaster, will conduct examinations for organists June 26. Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park, soprano and singing teacher, will be in charge of singing examinations June 22 and Mrs. Florence Aymong, Toronto, will conduct speech arts examinations June 19.

Phyllis Webb

City Poet Awarded Bursary

Victoria-born poet Phyllis Webb has been awarded one of six of the latest series of Canadian government fellowships and bursaries, $2,000 and a year in France to study modern literature.

The 30-year-old author and radio commentator had her first poetry published in a volume called Trio, with works of two other young poets, Gael Turnbull and E. W. Mandel, in 1953. Her own book of poems, Even Your summer by McClelland and Stewart Eye, was published last art.

She has appeared on CBC's Critically Speaking, as Roving Reporter, and on Anthology, reading her own and other poetry, as well as news talks and several documentaries.

Educated at St. Margaret's School, UBC and McGill, she worked as secretary to David L. Thomson, dean of the faculty of graduate studies at McGill, and in London as secretary to a woman doctor of psychiatry at the London School of Economics.
